NURSES' AIDES INDUCTED INTO DEFENSE CORPS

Eleven nurses' aides were received into the civilian defense corps of Adams county at public exercises held Monday evening in the court house here.

The induction ceremony was conducted by Judge W. C. Sheely, chairman of the county council of defense, for the aides, all of whom have been trained at the Warner hospital during the last year under the sponsorship of the local Red Cross chapter.

In a short talk, Judge Sheely welcomed the aides into a defense organization that includes 5,000 countians. He lauded the cooperation of the public in the various tests that have been held and at the same time he commended the county for its response to the salvage and bond drives. He closed by emphasizing that Adams countians will unite "When there is work to be done."

Six Receive Pins

Preceding the induction ceremony, Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Lewars presented Red Cross pins to the six nurses' aides who completed the second class at the Warner hospital. Those who received pins: Mrs. Dorothy Riffle, Miss Dorothy Foth, Miss Virginia Hershey, Mrs. Margaret Krick, Mrs. Hazel Justin and Mrs. Pauline Fry. Mrs. Glenn Sachs, supervisor of nurses at the hospital, instructed the aides.

The first nurses' aide class received pins and caps in May of last year. This group included Miss Roseanna Marie Cromer, Mrs. Mazie Henderson, Mrs. Mildred Murray, Mrs. Eloise Mason and Mrs. Frances Bisbing.

The group inducted into the defense organization comprised the five aides listed above in the 1942 class and the six who have completed the 1943 course.

Chariman Expresses Appreciation

Mrs. Lewars, who is chairman of the Adams county Red Cross chapter, expressed appreciation for the work the 11 aides are going. She indicated that the Red Cross activities in the county have reached their peak in providing this number of aides.

Recalling the influenza epidemic of the first World war, Mrs. Lewars said that much suffering probably could have been averted had civilians had the advantage of nurses' aide training then.

May Serve Military Hospitals

Mrs. Henry M. Scharf, who is chairman of the Red Cross committee supervising the nurses' aide project, announced that aides are permitted now to serve in military hospitals as volunteers. She expressed the thanks of the Red Cross to Mrs. Sachs for her voluntary supervision of the classes. She also disclosed that the aides have been performing many duties at the Warner hospital.

Mrs. Sachs indicated Monday evening that another class for aides will be organized if the necessary number of volunteers can be enrolled.

U. S. To Send Students To Gettysburg

Gettysburg college — along with other institutions throughout the country—has been selected to receive students upon assignment from the government, Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president, announced today.

No other details of the arrangements under the proposed federal plans were available today.

President Hanson also revealed that Gettysburg college students enlisted in the various reserves of the armed forces have been "frozen" in their present status until May.

The second semester's record-breaking enrollment is 630 students, Doctor Hanson disclosed and added that the "outlook is very encouraging."

ELECTED WARNER AUXILIARY HEAD FOR THIRD TERM

Mrs. LeRoy H. Winebrenner was elected for her third consecutive year as president of the Warner hospital auxiliary at the organization's annual meeting at the Nurses' home, Monday afternoon, at which heads of the hospital's board of directors and staff praised the service record of the auxiliary.

Mrs. B. G. Walter, Biglerville, was elected first vice president to take the place resigned by Mrs. S. G. Bigham, Biglerville, because of ill health. Mrs. Bigham a former president of the auxiliary, has been an officer of the organization since the hospital was founded more than a score of years ago and has been first vice president since 1931.

Other Officers

The other officers chosen Monday follow: Second vice president, Mrs. J. R. Riden, Littlestown; third vice president, Mrs. Harry Boyle, Emmitsburg; secretary, Miss Mary Ramer, re-elected for her third term, and treasurer, Mrs. Frank Kramer.

Dr. E. H. Markley, president of the hospital board of directors, and Dr. W. S. Mountain, president of the medical staff at the hospital, appeared before the auxiliary to express their appreciation and that of the groups they represented for the "excellent work" of the auxiliary.

Doctor Markley said that on the average, the auxiliary has paid for hospital improvements, furnishings or equipment worth $1,000 a year for the last two years, while at the same time gathering foodstuffs worth another $1,000 annually.

"Real Thing" Is Different From Training, Countian Writes After Raid On Wake

"The real thing is different from the combat training I took back in the states," George E. Hollabaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hollabaugh, Biglerville, who is now a flying engineer on a U. S. Liberator bomber in the Pacific, wrote to his parents after he returned from a bombing attack on Wake island several weeks ago.

Hollabaugh's bomber was struck by enemy fire during the Wake island raid, but "we all came back O.K.," he wrote.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollabaugh last week received a letter from their son, dated January 4, which follows in part:

"I don't know what happened, but last night I got fourteen letters. That is the first I heard from you all for over two weeks and believe me that is a long time when you have not been home for more than a year.

"News that would be of interest to you is very scarce here and I hardly know what to write. I guess you have all heard and read a lot about the big blow we gave Wake island. I bet you didn't know however that I helped to do the job.

"Yep, I was with the squadron and no one was lost or even hurt. We all came back to base O.K. Not so bad, was it? When we did get back and examined the bombers, we did find some close calls. My plane had a bullet hole through it and believe me that is plenty close enough for comfort.

"The real thing is different from the combat training I took back in the States. Out here it is a case of playing marbles for keeps.

"If it takes all of this to win this war then I am ready to take my place and do my bit each day. Well, I guess you have read all about it so there is no need of my writing you further about this episode."

George Hollabaugh was graduated from Biglerville high school in 1937 and then studied at the Carlisle Commercial Business college. He enlisted in the Army Air Corps in December, 1941, and took six months of base training at Sheppard Field, Wichita Falls, Texas. He graduated there and received his diploma from the U. S. Army Air Corps Technical school on June 11, 1942. Then he was sent to San Diego, California, for training in a plane manufacturing plant.

He received his combat training at Sioux City, Iowa, and last October was sent to San Francisco, from where he went to Honolulu. He has been operating from that base since. He gets his mail through APO 953, care of the postmaster at San Francisco.

Far-Reaching War Plans Of United Nations Taking Shape

(By The Associated Press)

A flame of open revolt in France, crisis in North Africa and ever blackening defeat in Russia formed the composite picture confronting Adolf Hitler and his satellites in World War II today.

At the same time, the behind-the-scenes atmosphere was rife with signs of momentous events in the making on the part of United Nations leaders, perhaps leading the way for the long-awaited invasion of Hitler's "European fortress" in the coming weeks or months.

Censored dispatches from London said far-reaching war plans of the Allied nations were taking shape, and reported that as one phase of the talks an agreement over the North African political squabble had been reached by Gen. Charles De Gaulle and Gen. Henri Honore Giraud following ediation by the United States and Britain.

Details of the agreement were not immediately disclosed.

In France, the pro-Nazi Vichy government proclaimed a state of siege in ancient Marseille, France's second largest city, after Swiss reports told of angry Frenchmen fortifying their homes and firing on German soldiers attempting to evacuate the city's port district.

Germans Use Artillery

A Reuters (British News agency) dispatch from Switzerland said the Germans had brought up artillery to shell the revolting Frenchmen into submission and declared house-to-house fighting was in progress.

DNB, official German news agency, said 40,000 persons had been arrested in the city.

Nazi occupation authorities ordered the evacuation and razing of the Marseille port district apparently as part of a defense measure against possible Allied invasion from North Africa.

On the northern shores of the Dark Continent, the Axis faced sharpening pressure from both sides as the victorious British 8th Army swept on past Tripoli, en route to Tunisia.

A bulletin from British headquarters said Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's 8th Army scored new gains yesterday in pursuit of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces and Baltimore, Jan. 26 (AP)—Everett Lee De Goyler, assistant federal deputy petroleum administrator, told the Council of State Governments today that the time was not far away when fuel oil would be rationed throughout the country. At the same time, De Goyler asserted there was no hope of early relief in the critical gasoline shortage which has brought a pleasure driving ban to the Eastern Seaboard.

Washington, Jan. 26 (AP)—An investigation into Rubber Administrator William Jeffers' charges that "the Army and Navy and loafers" were interfering with war production was ordered today by the House Naval committee.

Harrisburg, Jan. 26 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Legislature was asked today to appropriate $1,000,000 to finance local civilian defense activities. A bill introduced by Senator Joseph M. Barr (D-Allegheny) and Elmer J. Holland (D-Allegheny) would appropriate the fund to the state defense council for distribution to cities, towns, boroughs and townships.

Washington, Jan. 26 (AP)—A bill to continue the administration's lend-lease authority for another year was introduced today by Chairman Bloom (D-NY) of the House Foreign Affairs committee as especially needed now "when the United Nations are on the march to victory."

COURT HEARING SUIT BASED ON AUTO ACCIDENT

The suit of B. Rush Mellott, Gettysburg R. 5, and his 19-year-old son, Nelson E. Mellott, same address, for damages from Glenn and Katherine Tuckey, of Wenksville, is on trial today in Adams county court as the first and only civil action to go before a jury at this session of court.

The trial opened at 9:30 o'clock this morning, but completion of the case today appeared doubtful early this afternoon with the plaintiff's case not yet complete.

The Mellotts are asking to be repaid for damages to their car, hospital and doctors' bills; for pain suffered by the son as a result of injuries he received in the accident, and for the loss of his right arm. The member had to be amputated in the hospital here after the accident last August 6.

The collision occurred on the morning of that day at the intersection of the Granite Station-Bonneauville road with the Lincoln highway. Young Mellott was driving south toward his Mt. Pleasant township home after driving to Granite Station on an errand and Mrs. Tuckey was headed east on the main highway.

Much of this morning's session was occupied with the testimony of LeRoy H. Winebrenner, Gettysburg, who recently made a survey and drawing of the accident scene and that of Nelson Ellery Mellott, the chief plaintiff witness. Young Mellott testified he stopped his car 11 feet from the edge of the highway and waited for a west-bound truck to pass before driving onto the highway. He noticed no cars ap-

DRIVER INJURED AS 2 TRUCKS HIT

A driver was injured and two trucks badly damaged when they collided head-on this afternoon at 12:15 o'clock at the crest of a hill on West Middle street at Seminary ridge.

Morris was driving a truck owned by the O. P. Bohman company, of Hagerstown, east on the Fairfield road when it collided with an oil truck being driven west by Jack F. McCleaf, 209 West Middle street, just on the east side of the crest of the hill. McCleaf was uninjured.

Borough Officer Charles W. Culp, who investigated the accident, said the Hagerstown truck was on the left side of the highway. Officer Culp said he would lay charges against Morris for failing to yield the right of way before Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder.

LIONS CLUB SEES CIVIL WAR VIEWS

Gettysburg Lions at their weekly dinner meeting at Mrs. Smith's restaurant, Monday evening, witnessed a showing of the William H. Tipton collection of Gettysburg views of the battlefield here immediately after the battle and other local scenes in the late 1800's.

The picture were shown and explained by Dr. Frederick H. Tilberg, Gettysburg National park historian, before the group of 26 Lions and guests. The guests included J. Calvin Lady, William Durboraw, Dr. Henry Stewart and W. J. Swope.

The club voted to purchase a sponsor's ticket for the President's Birthday ball in Gettysburg and 14 of the clubmen volunteered as Red Cross blood donors. Clubmen who were absent Monday evening will be contacted in connection with the blood donor program and any additional names will be turned over to Radford H. Lippy, chairman of the Red Cross blood donor service committee in this county.

The collection of slides shown by Doctor Tilberg were principally copies of photos made here by Photographer Tyson and his apprentice, William H. Tipton, but included some copies of Matthew Brady photos made on the field immediately after the battle. The collection included a view of the parade in which Lincoln rode to the National cemetery for its dedication on November 19, 1863; a view of the crowd at the cemetery for that occasion, and old pictures of town streets, center square and the college buildings.

CAR HITS TRUCK; THREE UNHURT

Three Gettysburg negroes enroute to work at Mechanicsburg escaped injury this morning when their car struck a truck loaded with slate, ripping off a front wheel of the sedan and causing it to cross the highway, climb a bank and roll over.

The accident occurred about 6:50 o'clock at Shady Acres on the hill crest just south of Twin Bridges on the Harrisburg road, seven miles north of here.

The driver of the car was T. E. Williams, 58, colored, Gettysburg R. 1, and his brother, Charles B. Williams, Gettysburg R. 3, was one of the other occupants of the machine. The third man's name was not learned.

The investigation of the mishap by Private George Ackerson, of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police, showed that Williams' car struck the left rear section of the trailer drawn by a truck operated by Robert Detzi, Windgap, Pa., en route to Baltimore.

Williams told the officer that the truck lights blinded him. The truck driver said that he attempted to avoid the collision by swerving his slow-moving vehicle to the right.

No one was injured, but damage totaling $100 was caused to the Williams car.

Axis Rearguards Active

While the bulk of Rommel's legions apparently had retreated into Tunisia and joined the Axis Tunisian forces commanded by Ccl.-Gen. Jurgen von Arnim, Axis rearguards were reported still filtering through Zuara, 65 miles west of Tripoli, under violent bombing and machine-gunning assault by Allied warplane.

Fighting French headquarters announced that Brig.-Gen. Jacques Leclerc's columns had entered Tripoli, after a 1,200-mile drive across the Sahara desert from Lake Chad in the heart of Equatorial Africa.

United Nations headquarters reported briefly that "our forces continued to operate toward the north in Ousseltia valley" and said heavy rains again bogged down the campaign.

Jap Shipping Raided

Without confirmation from Allied sources, an Italian communique asserted that in the period of January 18-24 the Allies lost more than 4,000 prisoners, 13 tanks captured or destroyed, 70 guns and 200 motor transports in Tunisia.

Striking by night and day, Allied warplanes were officially credited today with raining havoc on Japanese shipping, airdromes and motor transports in Burma and the South Seas, with more than 15 tons of bombs unloaded on the enemy base at Rabaul in a single phase of the offensive.

Other Allied planes dropped 1,000-pound bombs on the Japanese base at Lae, New Guinea, inflicting heavy damage, and strafed targets at Salamaua, Finschhafen and Gasmata.

MacArthur Is 63

On the Soviet front, Russia's armies drove their battle lines closer to the great German base at Rostov and deeper into the Ukraine today, spurred by Premier Joseph Stalin's rallying cry:

"Forward! To the routing of the German invaders and their expulsion over the boundaries of our motherland!"

Usually taciturn, Stalin warmly praised the Red armies, declaring they had driven 245 miles, captured more than 200,000 prisoners and routed 102 divisions—perhaps 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 troops—in their two-month-old winter offensive.

Red Assaults Increase

Hitler's high command reported that the Red Army's assaults were increasing in violence on a wide part of the long battlefront, and Berlin newspapers again warned the German people that the war had taken a dangerous turn.

Field dispatches said Red Army spearheads were now aimed at Rostov from points 56 miles to the east and 70 miles to the north.

Other Soviet gains reported by the Russian command included the recapture of all of strategic Voronezh, about midway on the Moscow-Rostov railway, and the capture of Belaya Glina, 90 miles southeast of Rostov. The Germans announced yesterday that they had abandoned the "bridgehead of Voronezh" where they first spilled across the Don river.

In the Ukraine, Soviet troops were reported within 10 miles of the big Voroshilovgrad industrial center while other Red Army columns advanced toward the steel city of Kharkov, the "Pitsburgh of the Ukraine."

State of Siege

London, Jan. 26 (AP)—Vichy authorities have proclaimed a state of siege in Marseille, the Vichy radio reported today, after dispatches from Switzerland told of angry Frenchmen fortifying their homes in the old port district of the city and firing on German soldiers ordered to evacuate the district.

The German news agency DNB said in dispatches to Madrid and Lisbon that 40,000 persons had been arrested in the city. The Vichy radio, which placed the number of arrested at 6,000, was making an obvious effort to minimize difficulties in the old and historical city of Marseille, second largest in France.

Shortly after reporting the state of siege proclamation, the radio asserted that Marseille was calm and the evacuation of the old port district had taken place without difficulty. Earlier it had reported that anyone disobeying an order or attempting to shoot would be sentenced to death.

A Reuters dispatch from Zurich said the Germans had brought up artillery to shell revolting Frenchmen into submission if necessary and that house-to-house fighting was in progress.

German occupation authorities had ordered evacuation and razing of the district, apparently as a defense measure against possible Allied invasion from north Africa. The Germans have been fortifying the coast in the Marseille area since completing the occupation of France.

German dispatches reporting the arrest of 40,000 persons said the move was "absolutely necessary because there were among them many criminals whose activities were against the security and interest of the state."

Americans Take Tunisian Offensive

An American armored column (upper shaded arrow) smashed an enemy unit (1, black arrow) near Ousseltia, Allied headquarters in North Africa announced. Other American troops based at Tebessa (lower shaded arrow) tested enemy strength near Maknassy, and apparently were intent on splitting Axis troops hemmed into the coastal corridor below Sfax. British Eighth Army units (white arrows) forged ahead in pursuit of the Axis Afrika Korps which sought to get behind the Mareth line (2). Allied air forces bombed Sicily and Zuara (3).

Impressions of Tripoli

Tripoli, Jan. 23 (Delayed) (AP)—Seeing people liberated from virtual bondage and watching their emotional outbursts form the most graphic impressions we have of the occupation of Tripoli.

Only a few hours ago British troops and advance units of the Royal Air Force rolled into this city and the official surrender to General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery wrote the last chapter in the fall of Mussolini's African empire.

Touring the city, we visited Tripoli's ancient ghetto where some 16,000 Jews were crowded into a labyrinth of houses and cellars resembling a rabbit warren.

We walked through an arched gate guarded by military police and as soon as the people recognized us as Americans the emotional outburst was almost riotous.

Some threw themselves at our feet, offering gifts of not only wine and tobacco but money as well.

Men threw their arms about our necks and kissed our cheeks. Women kissed our hands. Children clung to our legs and kissed our dusty shoes.

Among the things that he noted as needing improvement were the sewer system and the recreation facilities.

At the close of his remarks other Rotarians joined an open discussion. President Paul A. Kinsey presided during the meeting that was held in the Y.W.C.A. building, center square.

Bullet Quintet Faces Muhlenberg Passers Here Wednesday Evening

JAYVEES WILL ENGAGE Y.C.I. AT 7 O'CLOCK

One of the keenest athletic rivalries on the Gettysburg college schedule will be renewed Wednesday evening when "Doggie" Julian brings his fast-stepping Muhlenberg college basketball team here for a game with the once-beaten Bullet quintet.

At 7 o'clock the Bullet jayvees, victors over the Navy Plebes in their only start, will meet York Collegiate Institute of York.

Although greatly disappointed on losing a one-point decision to the strong Aberdeen Bombers here Saturday after leading throughout much of the game, the Bullet players are determined to start a new winning streak at the expense of their time-honored rivals.

The Bullets are not forgetting the twin setbacks handed them here and at Allentown by the Cardinal and Gray cagers last year as they prime for Wednesday's tilt. From all angles the game looks like another thriller-diller.

Mules Heavy Scorers

Muhlenberg has a number of veterans who participated in the Bullet defeats of 1942. Coach Julian's outfit possesses plenty of scoring punch and in its most recent victory on Saturday defeated a high-rating Moravian college team 67-62. Muhlenberg has lost by narrow margins to St. Joseph's and Temple university.

Coach "Hen" Bream is not expected to alter his starting lineup. George Dracha is still nursing an injured finger and is definitely out of the game. His place will be filled by either Eugene Haas or Davey Plank. Vince Parnell and Cal Welliver will be at the forward positions with Tony Yovicsin at center and Don Freedman at guard.

SUGGESTS FINE FOR VICTORY GARDEN THEFTS

Harrisburg, Jan. 26 (AP)—Fines for stealing food from Victory Gardens and for wasting empty tin cans are provided in new House bills aimed at helping Pennsylvania's war effort.

War-minded law-makers pushed total bills introduced in the lower chamber to more than 100 last night, turning the legislative spotlight on protection of the home front and its defense workers.

A fine of $500 or one year in jail or both would be levied against anyone caught stealing from Victory Gardens under a measure presented by Samuel Rose (D-Philadelphia).

Earl Chudoff (D-Philadelphia) proposed in another measure that local defense councils set up containers for cleaned and processed empty tin cans, providing a fine of $25 for anyone disposing of cans "in any other manner."

Protection for Wardens

Two bills would make the state responsible for auxiliary policemen and firemen and air raid wardens injured or killed while on duty. They were presented by Robert K. Hamilton (D-Beaver) and T. A. Freed (R-Lehigh).

Some bills, however, veered away from war such as one by F. J. Tiemann (R-Philadelphia) which would legalize bingo games for religious, charitable, war veteran or labor groups on payment of $5 for a permit. John J. Baker (D-Allegheny) and Louis Leonard (D-Allegheny) introduced a similar measure which would fix the cost of the permit at $25.

In the Senate, meanwhile, John J. Haluska (D-Cambria) presented a bill calling for repeal of the 1941 law banning barmaids, and H. Jerome Jaspan (D-Philadelphia) offered a measure providing for Public Utility commission control of all municipally-owned utilities.

Other House bills would:

Make it unlawful in advertising for employes to make any reference to race, creed or color—E. F. Thompson (D-Philadelphia).

Repeal 1942 personal property taxes—Reuben E. Cohen (D-Phila.). Similar bill by M. J. Root (R-Phila.).

Amend municipal authority act to include electric light plants as projects—R. K. Hamilton (D-Beaver).

Reduce Age Limit of Electors

Reduce age limit of electors from 21 to 18—A. J. Petrosky (D-Westmoreland) and T. J. Heatherington (D-Allegheny).

Eliminate fees for birth, marriage and death certificates for men and women in military service—Alvin H. Hocke (R-York).

Include silt drainage in state sanitary water law—Charles H. Brunner (R-Montgomery).

Set up branch offices of revenue department to issue motor vehicle licenses—R. W. Greenwood (R-Wyoming).

Eliminate hunting and fishing license fees for men in armed forces—T. A. Freed (R-Lehigh).

Ban night clubs below ground level and prohibit entertainment in other than fire proof building—Herman J. Tahl (R-Philadelphia).

Require motorists traveling in the same direction as school buses to stop and proceed with caution when children are entering or leaving buses—Albert L. O'Connor (D-Cambria).

Exempt housewives not gainfully employed from per capita taxes in second, third and fourth class school districts—Francis E. Pettit (D-Washington) and W. J. Lane (D-Washington).

SPORTS ROUNDUP

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Jan. 26 (AP)—The three New York baseball clubs, which can quarrel furiously over nothing at times, agree that they won't let any of their players train by themselves in warmer climates after the northern camps open . . . "You know a ball player's idea of training," snorts Secretary Eddie Brannick of the Giants. "They work out a few minutes then go play a round of golf." . . . "We're going to urge them all to do some road work before they report," adds Ed Barrow of the Yanks. "We always do." . . . The Dodgers' Branch Rickey says he'd like to get five or six players together for preliminary work about March 1 so he could be sure how their conditioning is coming along.

CONTRARY OPINIONS

Babe Ruth's idea that northern training will "ruin" players and that the pitchers will only be good for a few innings at the start brought a series of snorts along the baseball beat . . . "What did he ever know about training?" was the general reaction . . . and you gotta admit the Babe never took his spring work too seriously . . . Dixie Walker, for one, figures that players who live in the north all winter will be a lot healthier for staying there to train instead of moving to a warmer climate and back again . . . And folks who follow the local semi-pro clubs point out that the Bushwicks, one of the fastest teams, never go south and begin playing early in March without any casualties. Their pitchers work only three-inning stretches then but they show mid-season stuff.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Wilbur Jennings, Richmond (Va.) News Leader: "Has anyone thought of holding the Kentucky derby and the Bunion derby at the same time at Louisville this year? It seems quite appropriate in view of the ban on pleasure driving and since Churchill Downs is some three miles from Louisville."

GENTLEMAN JOE

Although Joe Choynski, who died Sunday, weighed only 170 pounds in his fighting days, he took on such big guys as Jim Corbett, 220-pound Jim Jeffries, Sailor Tom Sharkey and Jack Johnson and did all right . . . and he claimed that in five fights with Corbett (including one with bare fists on a sand lot) he only was licked once . . . in his book on Gentleman Jim, ring historian Nat Fleisher quotes Billy Delaney, trainer of Corbett and Jeffries, as saying the Choynski-Corbett battle on a barge at Benicia, Calif., was the greatest fight he ever had seen. "For cleverness, endurance and gameness displayed, I've never seen its equal," said Billy . . . and Corbett called Joe "the salt of the earth, an all-around good fellow, gentleman, who was always on the level."

SERVICE DEPT.

Sgt. Jackie Wilson thought so much of his chances against Jack La Motta when they fought at Madison Square Garden recently that he bought tickets for more than 50 of his buddies at Mitchell field, N. Y. . . . Ralph Bishop, the Norfolk Naval Training station court star, was a member of the 1936 Olympic basketball team that toured Germany . . . Basil James, the jockey, is wearing an M. P. armband these days and bossing the would-be soldiers at the New York induction center . . . What a day he'll have if a racing steward ever appear in the line.

PITT WELCOMES SHAUGHNESSY AS GRID COACH

By MARBEN GRAHAM

Pittsburgh, Jan. 26 (AP)—The University of Pittsburgh's once mighty gridiron Panthers, licking wounds of such defeats as 50-7 by Minnesota and 59-19 by Ohio State last year, welcomed today with open arms a new coach, Clark D. Shaughnessy and his famed "T" formation.

The Pitts haven't had such lickings since they started to play the old game of football in 1904. And not only that, they had sent four teams to the Rose bowl—more than any other eastern college— and even had had one of their aggregrations turn down a trip in 1937 to the west coast.

The board of trustees last night unanimously approved a motion to hire Shaughnessy, a veteran of 29 years coaching with Tulane, New Orleans Loyola, Chicago, Stanford and Maryland.

Wanted "Best Coach" Available

Jimmy Hagan, athletic director at Pitt, explained that he had picked out Shaughnessy after the athletic board had instructed that the "best coach available" be contacted to succeed the incumbent, Charley Bowser, who expects to be in the Navy by the time his contract expires on March 15.

Bowser succeeded Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland, now a lieutenant commander in the Navy, when Jock resigned four years ago in protest against a sudden athletic deflation policy which eliminated direct aid to athletes and put Pitt's athletic program under supervision of Major John Griffith, high commissioner of the western (Big Ten) football conference.

Pitt has the disadvantage in comparison with some state operated schools, such as most of the Big Ten group are, in that under its code it may not give athletic students free scholarships—amounting to around $300 annually. And, whereas, under the oldtime regime football players drew regular pay for work they didn't have to perform meticulously, they now get 50 cents an hour for work that must be done regularly.

Shaughnessy told local newsmen he didn't ask any change in the setup.

Sell School to Athlete

"I think Pitt has the proper ideals," he said. "I think it is fine to have good athletic teams. But I like to see the athletes come from the student body in a natural manner. Sell the school to the athlete, not hire the athlete is my idea."

Shaughnessy, while at Chicago, was a close friend of George Halas, coach of the Chicago Bears. Together they worked hard on the famed "T" formation. Clark said he used some of its variations with the illfated Maroons, before they abandoned football.

"It didn't make much difference then, anyway," he said. "We just showed up for the games."

When he went to Stanford later, Shaughnessy brought out the "T" backfield arrangement in full style and had phenomenal success—as did the Bears when they smothered the Washington Redskins some 73-0 to win the pro football title two years ago.

WAR TRAINING AIDS AMHERST

By STEVE O'LEARY

Amherst, Mass., Jan. 26 (AP)—Amherst's war-inspired physical fitness program is being handed all the credit today for the amazing athletic record the Lord Jeffs have compiled since last fall.

In that time Amherst teams have not been defeated in a single major athletic contest. They have produced the first unbeaten and untied eleven in Lord Jeff gridiron history and a soccer team which gained the Little Three title and a tie for the New England Intercollegiate championship.

The basketball and swimming teams have taken up where the fall teams stopped. Each is in the midst of its schedule but has yet to bow to any opponent.

"All team practice has been in addition to a very tough physical fitness schedule," explained Prof. Allison W. "Eli" Marsh, head of the Physical education department, who doubles in brass as soccer coach.

"Some colleges excuse athletic competitors from the regular physical education. But we believe our policy of toughening for all under the war-time physical training program is what is helping our teams to show up so well."

$10,000 BLAZE

Emporium, Pa., Jan. 26 (AP)—Fire which started from explosion of a gas boiler in the Creighton building here Sunday did $10,000 damage, said Fire Chief Joseph E. Burnside. Three firemen were overcome by smoke. Principal loss was in a shop heavily stocked with women's clothing.

Hershey Cancels Ice-Capades Show

Hershey, Pa., Jan. 26 (AP)—The Hershey Hockey club today announced the American league Hershey Bears will play in Cleveland February 2, instead of at the Hershey arena where the game with the Cleveland Barons originally was scheduled.

Meanwhile the arena management cancelled the "Ice-Capades of 1943," scheduled for nine performances beginning February 4, because of the ban on automobile pleasure driving.

The Hershey Bears have played several contests at the arena since the ban became effective, although attendance has been sharply reduced.

Hockey club officials had no comment on plans for the remainder of the Bears' at-home schedule.

PLASTIC BALL FOR GOLF IS UNDER STUDY

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

New York, Jan. 26 (AP)—Science is preparing a plastic ball for the rubber-starved golfer.

The newly developed pellet already has been put through exhaustive laboratory and field tests and has proven itself 90 per cent as efficient as the present rubber, corewound ball.

And there's nothing in the rule book which prohibits the new ball's use except the law of supply. It probably won't be manufactured for general distribution until after the war.

Joseph Dey, executive secretary of the United States Golf association, said today that a ball was legal on the golf course as long as it didn't exceed 1.62 ounces in weight, 1.68 inches in diameter and didn't travel faster than 250 feet a second when tested on the USGA machine.

For Fun Experiment

Possibilities of the new pellet were discovered when a chemist made up some of the plastic and molded it into balls "just for the fun of it."

Some of them were sent to golf professionals, including Horton Smith. The pros posted their usual low scores but commented on the explosive noise made when the ball was struck and the "string" felt in the hands when an off-line shot was hit. The two complaints virtually have been eliminated in newer models.

Manufacturers feel that if the plastic ball proves popular it can be sold for as little as 15 cents.

The scientists, however, haven't yet found a substitute for the rubber used in the tape by which putts at the nineteenth hole are measured.

SPORT SHORTS

Montreal, Jan. 26 (AP)—Mervyn (Red) Dutton, manager of the disbanded Brooklyn Americans, today took up the duties as acting president of the National Hockey league. Frank Calder of Montreal, president since the league was founded in 1917, suffered a heart attack at a meeting of the board of governors in Toronto yesterday. Calder is 66.

Chicago, Jan. 26 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox, who have proudly held the No. 1 spot in the American league service list with 19 players in the armed forces, have had to surrender that position to the Philadelphia Athletics. A revised service list today showed the Athletics with 20 men working under Uncle Sam's colors.

Chicago, Jan. 26 (AP)—The Westgate Valley Public Golf course faced the possibility of shutting down this year because most of its help either had gone to war or found work at defense plants. The problem was easily solved however, when 35 regular patrons of the course volunteered their services. They will work in the clubhouse, on the course and in the pro shop. In the meantime they may find time to play a little golf.

British Fleet Active In Mediterranean

Aboard a British warship off the Tripolitanian coast, Jan. 16 (Delayed) (AP)—The Axis has just had convincing and spectacular evidence that the British Eastern Mediterranean fleet is again on the offensive—evidence in the form of a 4,500-ton merchantman sunk and escorting destroyer badly damaged by shellfire.

The merchantman into which I saw this warship and another fire round after round of screaming shells and hundreds of glowing tracers was enroute from Tripoli to Palermo, Sicily, carrying troops and hundreds of Axis workmen to Sicilian farms.

There are 23 survivors aboard our ship, one of them a former Brooklyn waterfront resident who speaks English. He said many of his shipmates were natives of Tripolitania who were being taken to Sicily and Italy unwillingly to do farm work.

We had seen at least 50 screaming Italian seaman in a lifeboat, barely floating, shouting "aiuta—help—"

The boat capsized just as a line was tossed but 23 were rescued. Trying to rescue more we were warned of the approach of enemy aircraft and forced to abandon the region.

I saw one old man deliberately shoved back in the water by a youngster who clambered to safety. The British saved the old man by tossing him a line.

1915 BOWLING TITLE TO BE ROLLED SUNDAY

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 26 (AP)—The 1915 bowling championship of Alaska will be rolled off Sunday. A sore thumb and the vagaries of 28 intervening years kept Chat (Sourdough) Sheets and George (Klondie) Kosmos from deciding it sooner.

Neither can remember now just who had the sore thumb, but they do recall that Sheets missed a strike on his final frame in the back room of Jack Robarts' recreation hall in Anchorage and left the title game in a tie. Then the match was postponed.

Sheets, who now operates bowling alleys here, then was superintendent of schools at Anchorage. Kosmos, now living in Seattle and secretary of the Northwest International Bowling Congress, was driving dog team between the interior gold camp at Kuskiquim and Seward.

Offers Challenge

Kosmos stopped over on one of his trips and challenged Sheets to a match for the championship of the territory.

With a crowd of sourdoughs and tenderfeet looking on, they rolled a mighty contest.

The scores seem incidental. Sheets and Kosmos report only that it ended in a tie and that somebody's thumb got sore and they had to quit.

The second meeting was arranged when teams from Seattle and Spokane lined up a home-and-home series for a purse of $500. Sheets and Kosmos found themselves on the opposing quintets.

Their re-match will be the climax event of a Red Cross benefit tournament now underway.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Bombay, Jan. 24 (Delayed)—British War Secretary Sir James Grigg has conferred a grand decoration on gallant peoples in his statement that "the destruction of the Italian empire was overwhelmingly our show, ours and India's and Australia's and New Zealand's and South Africa's and that of the inhabitants of British East Africa and British West Africa."

In assaying this tribute one's mind instinctively turns to the civilian population of Britain. No Army has done more for the Allied cause than these brave folk whose stout spirit enabled England to hold out against the most frightful air assault the world has known and thus prevent a quick Hitlerian triumph. They've waited long for their reward in smashing victory and now it has come. That will mean much for morale in the trying days still ahead.

Through an association of ideas and perhaps partly because I'm a long way from America and a bit lonesome, my mind turns to my own people who also are doing their bit in this war, although far removed from actual battlefields. For them I want to write a little footnote to Sir James' broadcast Saturday.

Yankees Help

Just for home consumption and not to beat the drum, it won't do any harm to amplify his statement that "of course we had ungrudging help from American supplies and from American air forces in the latest stage, but nevertheless it has been overwhelmingly our show." Maybe Sir James himself added to this and it wasn't cabled out for publication. Anyway, I'm going to say my two cents' worth because I think you would be glad to know that the Yankee members of this Allied football team in Africa has carried the ball more than once.

I was with the British Eighth Army in Libya after General Sir Bernard Montgomery's sensational rout of the Axis forces from El Alamein and before he began his great drive at El Aghfiea. I had full opportunity to check all the operations, including those of the American air forces.

This I can assure you that our air contingent, and especially our heavy bombers, played a major role in this victory.

I will go further and say the Eighth Army's success certainly couldn't have been achieved in such a fast and overwhelming fashion without our air support.

At some of the most crucial moments of this campaign our heavy long distance bombers were the only ones which could reach General Field Marshal Edwin Rommel's rear bases and supply lines. Day after day Uncle Sam's big bombers blasted the Axis communications. Who do you think it was that rendered Rommel's principal port of Tripoli impotent at a time when it was most essential to prevent him from receiving troops and supplies? Well, it was our heavy bombers.

Battle of Communications

This battle has been largely one of communications and Montgomery has stripped his enemy with masterful skill. In order to do this he had to depend on the British and American air forces.

To say we took a major hand in the vital long distance bombing doesn't detract in the least from the splendid and indispensible work of the Royal Air Force in other categories or from the brilliance of Montgomery's strategy and tactics. He has written his name firmly across the page of Britain's famous soldiers.

The full significance of Montgomery's victory will become apparent only when the last of the Axis forces have been driven into the sea from Africa. Then we shall see the reopening of those all important Mediterranean shipping lanes to the Middle East and India and China.

Not only will this hasten Hitler's inglorious end, but it will create a mighty avenue of strength to be directed against the Japanese. There's no operation within the realm of feasibility which could have contributed more to the shortening of the war than the north African show.

Rivers have always fascinated me. look upon them as the circulatory stem of a country. By looking at y map this fact will impress itlf upon anyone. Like the marvels blood streams of the human dy, the rivers of the world give e and substance to every country. The great Mississippi, the Amazon, e Danube, the Nile, the Volga, the ngtze—and endless others. Noble, luable, beautiful rivers—all of em. The part they play in fertilation, commerce, and human happness is beyond all calculation.

One of the most interesting deriptions of any river, about which have read, is that one of the nazon given in H. M. Tomlinson's he Sea and the Jungle," which available in one of the Modern brary series. Incidentally, there in this book one of the most rilling descriptions of a storm at a, as well.

Books written upon the rivers of e world would make up a very g library. Mark Twain's "Life on e Mississippi" is a famous book. interested Stephen Crane more an any others by this author. ven to this day this marvelous ver breathes out its stories of roance, adventure, and even of agedy. But forever it will "keep rolling along," doing its useful sks in a remarkable number of ays.

Anyone, who has ever visited the rand Canyon of Arizona, will reall the snake-like Colorado river, inding its way far below the crest this most astounding natural ectacle. For millions of years it as polished its path deeper into ie crust of the earth.

Rivers never sleep. They go on ieir way day and night and sing ieir songs in a thousand or so nguages, intermingling their comositions with those of the winds, ie songs of the birds, and the reams of man and maid. What a arvelous intelligence to have so rmed this earth as to make it both ie servant and the companion of an!

Martin Favors Return Of Unemployment Relief To Counties

1ST MESSAGE TO ASSEMBLY HAS POSTWAR PLANS

Harrisburg, Jan. 26 (AP)—Return of unemployment relief to the counties with the state making "a large contribution" to the cost—now running $6,250,000 monthly—was proposed to the Pennsylvania Legislature today by Governor Edward Martin. The federal government provides $2,000,000 of the present cost.

He called for transfer of the Department of Public Assistance to the Welfare department and at the same time urged the appropriations committees of both the Senate and House in advance of the commonwealth's budget for the next two years, due in February to "start work at once in order that they may determine where savings may be made in the various departments.

"Public assistance has not only been very expensive," Martin said in his first message to the General Assembly since his inauguration a week ago, "it has had a tendency to wreck the morale of our people.

Contribution from State

"It is suggested that this function be returned to the counties, with the state making a large contribution to the counties to assist them in taking care of those not employed. The state should retain a degree of supervision over the expenditure of these contributions."

The executive gave the Legislature a broad recommendation to "eliminate as much government as possible," both in the state and local units "in order that all possible manpower may be used in winning the war.

The Assistance department proposed to be abolished was established in 1935 during the democratic Earle administration. Prior to that relief had been in charge of the state Emergency Relief board.

In another major recommendation, Martin urged immediate consideration of "a fair and equitable re-districting and re-apportionment of the congressional, senatorial and legislative districts."

Other Recommendations

Other recommendations included:

1—Creation of a post-war planning commission with broad powers to consider a long-range road program, flood control, reforestation, building of dams on tributaries and construction of new public buildings.

2—Senate and House appropriations committee should start work at once in advance of the commonwealth's budget for the next two years "in order that they may determine where savings may be made in the various departments.

3—Consider the question of upward revision of teachers salaries, "where necessary," and authorize the state Council of Education "to change the time, the hours and the length of the school day, the school week and the school term, for the duration of the war."

4—Authorize workmen's compensation for air raid wardens and others connected with civilian defense for injuries sustained in blackouts and other actual duties.

5—Creation of a labor and industrial commission, including representatives of labor and industry, "to which shall be referred legislative proposals for more adequate and workable compensation laws and other matters affecting labor."

Local Government Emphasized

Emphasizing the importance of local government, the governor said:

"Many of us deplore the continuing centralization of power in the state capitals and in Washington. The cure for centralization is in making self-government work. Local government must do more work and better work than it is now doing or it will gradually be eliminated. Every possible encouragement must be given local government by leaving taxing privileges and power in its hands where it is feasible for the Legislature to do so."

The post-war planning commission, a major objective of the new administration, Governor Martin said, should start to work immediately.

"We wish to aid in taking care of the disabled soldiers and the widows and orphans of our veterans," he told a joint meeting of the Senate and House. "We want to bring into Pennsylvania industries to help do work that has been brought about or created by the hard necessities and lessons of war.

"Every war has brought new things, new methods, new materials into existence. Pennsylvania wants to be able to take advantage of the post-war situation."

Plan Coal Program

The commission, Governor Martin said "must also consider the question of post-war employment in private industries."

"It will undertake to offer a program for the anthracite coal and bituminous coal areas intended to maintain employment and to retain fuel markets revived or expanded by the emergency of war."

Additional recommendations included: Erection of a memorial building in Harrisburg to house veterans' activities; greater latitude given the Department of Banking concerning frequency of examinations; strengthening laws to reduce the accident rate in industry; elimination of duplicated and unnecessary inspections in both industry and agriculture.

Detective Donovan Ticen was questioning the youth when he recognized a pipe that fell from "Lupin's" pocket. The youth admitted he had taken it from the detective's desk and said he planned "to take it back to jail and sell it to get spending money."

ROOSEVELT GETS RUBBER TANGLE

Washington, Jan. 26 (AP)—It was up to President Roosevelt today to call the winner in the sharp skirmishing between Rubber Director William Jeffers and the armed services on whether Jeffers should get the over-riding priority go-ahead he demands for his synthetic rubber program.

The question is known to have been in the hands of James F. Byrnes, director of economic stabilization, for about two weeks, but informed sources said intense military pressure had been applied and the final decision would have to come from Mr. Roosevelt himself.

The intensity of the conflict was brought into the open yesterday by Jeffers' denunciation of what he called Army and Navy "interference" with war production. The country will get production, he told a session of the council of state governments in Baltimore, "if we keep the Army and Navy loafers out of these plants."

Jeffers was applauded by his audience but not by the Office of War Information in Washington which noted the administrator's remarks were not submitted in advance to OWI for clearance—a procedure which is followed to head off interagency strife. Jeffers said he didn't think it was necessary because he spoke at a "question and answer affair."

Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production board, who was called before the committee today, already has approved and sent to Byrnes a plan for giving Jeffers a green light on 55 per cent of the long-range synthetic rubber program.

Nelson expressed belief that all the "must" programs can be brought along simultaneously by proper scheduling of the items for which the various agencies are competing.

General Motors Plans Postwar Car Model

Pittsburgh, Jan. 26 (AP)—Six months after the end of the war, General Motors corporation will have its first "postwar model" in production, declared Paul Garrett, vice president of the automobile firm, addressing the Pittsburgh General Motor clubs.

It will not, Garrett explained, be a real postwar model; likely it will be the company's 1942 model.

Production on this model can be had in half a year, he asserted; a "new" model will require at least two years. The first cars after the war will be genuine "victory models," said Garrett.

There has as yet been no actual drafting of postwar cars, he explained; General Motors has been too busy with war work. The corporation's engineers have been getting out weapons for the Doughboys. The firm's war goods output increased from $2,000,000 to $8,000,000 a day and will go still higher, Garrett predicted.

Production of consumer goods must quickly return to normal if the United States is to maintain a stable economy during the transition period, he declared.

Family Re-United

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tyson of Youngstown, O., clasp their two-year-old son, George Leland Tyson, at a reunion at a Pittsburgh hospital where the youngster was taken after being found abandoned in a hotel lobby Dec. 1. The parents, held for court on a charge of abandoning the youngster, told a magistrate they brought the tot to Pittsburgh and left him in hope that he might get "a better home."

Officer Candidates Over 38 Ineligible

Harrisburg, Jan. 26 (AP)—Pennsylvania's 422 local draft boards today had instructions that registrants who have reached their 38th birthday anniversary are ineligible for induction as volunteer officer candidates.

Col. B. F. Evans, acting state director of selective service, notified the boards the order does not prevent men over 38 from enlisting in the Army "if they are acceptable for enlistment by the military authorities because of specific skills or qualifications."

LARGE PLANE FOUND WRECKED

Santa Rosa, Calif., Jan. 26 (AP)—A large plane has been found, completely demolished, at Blue Lake in northern Lake county, about 100 miles north of San Francisco, Santa Rosa police said they were informed early Monday.

The report came from the postmaster at Blue Lake.

Information from other sources in the Blue Lake district, however, failed to confirm the report.

Postmistress Marie Partenger at nearby Middletown said she had heard nothing of a wrecked plane having been found in the area.

Civilian airplane spotters at the Blue Lake observation post said they had seen nothing to substantiate the report.

This is the approximate area where earlier civilian reports had indicated a big Navy transport plane, missing with 19 persons aboard since last Thursday, might be found.

Among the 19 were Rear Admiral Robert H. English, commander of the Pacific fleet submarine force, three captains, and three commanders.

JAPS WIPED OFF BASE ON ISLAND

Washington, Jan. 26 (AP)—American forces on a general offensive in the Solomon islands were have won seven important positions from the enemy on Guadalcanal, to have killed 201 Jap soldiers and captured 40, and to have virtually wiped out an enemy base 190 miles to the northwest by sea and air attack.

The places captured, a communique said, were six important elevations west of the American air field on Guadalcanal and the coastal village of Kokumbona where quantities of stores and equipment were seized.

This meant that the American front lines had been advanced about two or three miles beyond previously-held Point Cruz which had been the furthest known point of advance on the coast.

URGES LABOR CONSCRIPTION TO AID FARMS

Philadelphia, Jan. 26 (AP)—Conscription of labor to keep farms in production was proposed last night by Rentzell D. Cleaveland, president of the Tri-State Packers association, at the organization's 38th annual convention.

The association represents food packers in New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware.

"We know that the voluntary method of recruiting workers for the farm was tried and failed to a large extent," Cleaveland said. "Therefore the other avenue would be to force certain shiftless classes either to work or fight."

Cleaveland also proposed Selective Service deferments for experienced cannery workers, saying:

"What food industries are asked to produce this year never can be accomplished unless the drafting of experienced cannery workers is discontinued * * *."

Sherwin Haxton, Oakfield, N. Y., cannery operator, said in another address that "there are plenty of tin cans to meet the needs of 1943—but 1944 is a different story."

Dr. C. H. Mahoney, of the University of Maryland faculty, said dehydrated foods never will supplant canned foods in domestic use despite their "boom" from Army and lease-lend use.

601 Ships Are Sunk Since Pearl Harbor

(By The Associated Press)

Enemy submarines—termed the Navy's "first enemy" by Admiral Harold R. Stark—have taken a toll of 601 Allied and neutral merchant ships in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor, the Associated Press count of officially announced sinkings showed Monday.

Announcement of the sinking of eight vessels, two of them American, were made last week. Seven of the eight were sent to the bottom off South America. Of the crews, 74 were reported dead and 53 missing.

It's Patriotic To Keep Well

STERILIZING IN THE HOME

By Wilda Camery, R.N.

Clean means two very different things as used in the home and in the hospital. This winter with many illnesses usually treated in the hospital being cared for at home, home nurses are keenly aware of the difference. The dishes in your cupboard, the linen on your shelves are clean—hygienically and aesthetically clean. But they are not necessarily "sterile clean"—they are not germ free.

All of you who have had babies in your home are familiar with this sort of sterile cleanliness. You've prepared formulas, boiling not only the bottles and the milk solution but also every utensil and pan used.

This same careful sterile technique can be applied to preparing equipment and supplies for such needs as home deliveries and the dressing of wounds.

Solutions made with boric acid powder, table salt, epsom salts or soda and water are made sterile by boiling for five minutes, if the container and water used are already sterile. Remember if the solution is to remain sterile it must stay in the original pan or be poured into a previously sterilized bottle that has a sterile cover.

Kitchenware and bottles that have been washed with soap suds and hot water are sterile after 20 minutes boiling. If knives and scissors must be made sterile, care for them separately, by putting them into sterile boiling water and boiling for only five minutes.

Rubber goods are also boiled briefly. For example, nipples after being washed with soap and water are left in sterile boiling water for only one minute.

Bandage materials such as linen, muslin, cotton, gauze and tape may be sterilized by wrapping firmly in packages of either cloth or heavy paper, and putting them into a warm oven. Leave in the oven until the paper is brown on the outside. For emergency needs, a bit of clean fresh linen such as a handkerchief or towel may be made fairly safe by ironing thoroughly with a very hot iron.

For home use, sterilize materials in only small amounts as they do not remain sterile long and are not safe for use after two weeks. A good general rule is "When in doubt, resterilize."

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of our dear father, William Tawney, who departed this life three years ago, January 22 and our dear mother, Jennie Myers Tawney, who was called away 19 years ago January 25th.

Three years ago dear father died,
How sad the years have been
And ones who linger only know;
How much we lost three years ago.

Days of sadness still come over us
Hidden tears forever flow
Memory keeps our mother near us,
Though she died nineteen years ago.

The flowers placed upon their graves
May wither and decay,
But the love of mother and father
who sleep beneath,
Will never fade away.

By their daughters,
Mrs. R. V. MacNeil
Mrs. Virginia Slentz

10-CAN STOCK PER PERSON O.K. IN RATION PLAN

Washington, Jan. 26 (AP)—If your supply of canned goods does not exceed ten cans for each member of your family you probably will not be deprived of any coupons when rationing of canned foods starts about March 1.

This probable limit—it may be trimmed down to eight or nine a person—has been adopted tentatively by the Office of Price Administration, it was learned today, to discourage hoarding.

Cans containing less than eight ounces will not be counted, although both size and contents will count on rationed purchases.

On dates yet to be fixed, depending on the speed of printing and distributing books, instructions and other forms, one adult from every family will go to a registration place with two things—the family's No. 1 ration books (the ones used for sugar and coffee) and a total of how many cans of fruits or vegetables (excluding home-canned) the family owns. It will not be necessary to list each can separately—just the total.

When he shows his No. 1 books, a clerk will pencil an "X" across stamp No. 19 in each book as a sort of receipt for book No. 2 which will then be handed out, one for each member of the family. The family will retain the No. 1 books, too.

Before handing out No. 2 books, however, the clerk will tear out coupons in accordance with the penalty.

Income Tax

No. 20

INTEREST INCOME

Interest income is entered in the return Form 1040 as items 3 to 5. Interest is variously taxable, some interest being wholly tax exempt and some partly tax exempt. Wholly tax-exempt interest includes interest on (a) obligations of a state, territory, or political subdivision thereof, or of the District of Columbia, or United States possessions; (b) obligations issued prior to March 1, 1941, under the Federal Farm Loan Act, or amendments to the Act; (c) obligations of the United States issued on or before September 1, 1917; and (d) Treasury notes, Treasury bill, and Treasury certificates of indebtedness issued prior to March 1, 1941. Although such interest is tax exempt, the amount of such obligations held by the taxpayer, as well as the amount of interest received or accrued during the year, must be shown in the return (in Schedule A).

Certain other interest is partially tax exempt. Interest on United States Savings bonds and Treasury bonds issued prior to March 1, 1941, is of this class. Interest on such bonds is exempt from normal tax, and on holdings of such bonds up to $5,000 principal amount is exempt from surtax also; that is, interest on such bonds held in excess of $5,000 principal amount must be included in surtax net income for computation of surtax.

Interest on obligations issued on or after March 1, 1941, by the United States or any agency or instrumentality of the United States, is subject to both normal tax and surtax. However, in the case of obligations issued at a discount, for example, war savings bonds, where income is reported on the cash basis, the interest may be reported each year as accrued (shown in a table on the bonds as the increase in the redemption value) or it may be deferred until the bonds come due, when it may all be included as income in that year. (Once a taxpayer has elected to accrue the discount, he can not change to the other method.)

On certain bonds with a "tax free covenant" the corporation issuing the bonds pays part of the income tax on such bond interest (2 per cent of the total interest earned by the bond). A person receiving interest on such bonds is entitled to a credit of the amount of income tax paid by the corporation in computing his tax due. The amount of such credit for tax paid at the source is entered in item 31 of the return Form 1040.

Interest on coupon bonds is considered received when the coupon becomes due and payable, irrespective of when the taxpayer cashes or presents the coupon for payment (unless, of course, the issuer of the bonds is in default and no funds are available to meet the interest). Interest on savings and deposit accounts is considered as received when it has been credited to the account of the taxpayer, subject to his withdrawal, irrespective of whether he withdraws it or not. Other interest is considered as received when paid or made available to the holder of the obligation.

Sometimes, notes are sold at a discount and redeemed at the face amount. While such discount is frequently considered interest in the commercial sense, for tax purposes it represents a gain from sale or exchange of property and is not reported as interest, but as a gain under item 8.

Problem of the WIRE CAGE

BY JOHN DICKSON CARR

Chapter Four

Brenda's nerves seemed on edge. "I hope it rains and rains and rains!" she said savagely.

And, just as abruptly, she ran out into the garden.

Hugh followed her, leaving Frank to bring Kitty. But he did not catch up with her until she had reached the tennis-court. From the house along the garden to the edge of the terrace was about a hundred yards in a straight line. Here a dozen steps in crazy-paving led down the terrace to flat ground below, and to the court enclosed in trees and hedges.

Hugh found her leaning one hand against the wire fence round the court, and breathing hard.

"Why did you run after me?" Brenda asked.

"Do you want me to tell you all over again? I've had my answer already, thanks. All the same, I'd like to know what's got into all of us today. We're none of us quite in our right minds: if we're not careful, there'll be murder done before the day's over—"

"I know."

"You know?"

He had tried to speak lightly, but Brenda made no pretence of doing so.

"Yes, I know," she insisted. "Anyway, that's not what I wanted to tell you. You think you understand, but you don't understand at all. I mean, it's about—about the other thing."

Danger again.

She was looking at the ground, scuffing the toe of her white tennis shoe in the grass. "I meant what I did, Hugh. I meant what I did, no matter what I said, do you see? Only there are reasons why I've got to marry Frank and please everybody. I wasn't going to tell you what the reasons were, and I certainly couldn't tell you when there was anybody else about, but I can't help it: I'm going to tell you now, Hugh, the reason—"

"Well, well, well, well!" interrupted a light, far-carrying, amused voice, bursting through the opening in the poplars.

"Brenda and I against you and Kitty," pursued Frank, and spun his racket into the air. "What'll you have, rough or smooth?" Rough. You lose, old boy. We'll take the south side. You can serve first, if you like."

As that set of definitely mixed doubles began, Dr. Nicholas Young sat in his study with Superintendent Hadley of the Criminal Investigation Department.

Superintendent Hadley, who was tall and heavy and looked like a Guards colonel, had not finished the good cigar he had been offered.

He said: "May I speak frankly, Dr. Young?"

"That means it's a kick in the eye," grumbled the gentleman known as Nick. "All right, on with it."

"I've now delivered the message Sir Herbert sent. I'm tempted to add something on my own. Would you believe evidence, if you heard it, that this paragon of yours, this Mr. Frank Dorrance, is little more than an infernal young blackguard?"

Nick's under-lip came out. "That's taking a bit on yourself, isn't it?"

"I know. But you certainly don't seem impressed by anything I've already told you."

Nick grew fretful.

"Well, what do you expect me to do?" he demanded querulously. "Lecture the boy? All right! I don't mind. You can't tell me he's done anything actionable."

At the moment Nick neither looked nor felt his best. Since his sight was defective in one eye—one of the lenses of his spectacles was frosted, which gave a sinister and misleading cast to his face—he should not have tried to drive a sports car as fast as Frank Dorrance. Only a week ago he had managed to squash a new Daimler as flat as an opera-hat against a tree in Highgate village, breaking such necessities as his right arm, his right collar-bone, and his left leg. This afternoon, propped up like an unwieldly idol in his desk chair, he seemed all splints and bandages.

"Let's get this straight," Nick continued, "Frank has been seen about with a shady bottle-party crowd who'll get into trouble as sure as guns. And because Sir Herbert Armstrong is a friend of mine, he sends a full-fledged superintendent to warn me about it. I appreciate it. But as for Frank getting into trouble—pfaa!"

Hadley looked at him curiously.

"I suppose you know everything he does?"

"Just between ourselves, I don't care two hoots what he does, so long as he behaves himself in public. I'll tell you something. That boy's got character."

"Evidently."

"Guts," said Nick. "Plenty of it. And I'll tell you something else. Just a month and three days from today, he is marrying one of the finest girls you'll ever meet: Bob White's daughter. And when they marry, they jointly inherit a cool fifty thousand pounds.

"A cool fifty thousand," repeated Nick, stressing the temperature popularly attributed to banknotes. "With any sort of luck, their first child will be born within a year. That child will be named Nicholas Young Dorrance. He will be educated at good preparatory and public schools, and then go to Sandhurst or Dartmouth; I don't care which; but Army or Navy it's to be. Definitely. Old Jerry Noakes had the bringing-up of Frank; and I won't say, mind you, that there aren't things in Frank's character I'd have made different; but this boy will be the one I bring up. And no mistake."

Hadley was curt.

"I have no doubt," he said, "that the child will be a credit both to you and to his prospective father. By the way, what relation is young Dorrance to you?"

"Frank? No relation at all?"

"But you keep on saying he takes after you."

"So he does. I don't want to bore you with the details," said Nick, "but it goes back a good many years. There were three of us at college—White, Jerry Noakes, and myself.

"Well, Bob White was the only one of us who had any children, and also the only one who didn't get on in the world. He married one of the Bedfordshire Stantons, a girl I was rather sweet on myself once, and they had one daughter: Brenda. We all made a lot of her.

"I had got on pretty well, if I do say it myself. And Jerry Noakes was doing uncommonly well in the City. He adopted a nephew of his: Frank. Mind, I'll say this for Jerry: he did everything for that boy, and didn't do such a bad job of it. But I helped a good deal. Well, the next thing we heard—out of a clear sky—was that Bob White had shot himself and his wife died of drink. I took the girl, of course.

"Meantime, Jerry Noakes and I were laying plans. He took to Brenda as much as I did. He was going to get Brenda and Frank married. But before he died he altered his will.

"He was leaving Frank and Brenda his money anyway, but now he left it to 'em on condition that they got married. The lawyer said he was loony in the head to make a will like that, but I stuck by Jerry."

In the pause after this energetic speech, the humming of the electric fan rose loudly. Throughout the room, throughout the house throughout the grounds was the quiet which proceeds a storm. It was so still that Hadley even imagined he could hear faint voices from the direction of the tennis-court. The sky had grown darker. Nick was sweating under his muffle of bandages, though their irritation had half gone.

Before its defeat, the Belgian army contained one person out of every 16 in the total population.

RADIO PROGRAMS

New York, Jan. 26 (AP)—Shh! It is supposed to be a deep dark secret that lies behind that phrase, which you couldn't have helped hearing if you tuned in the latest Information Please and Hit Parade broadcasts and which is scheduled for further repetition in Kay Kyser's show Wednesday night. These programs are under the same sponsor.

To reveal the "mystery" about the phrase—"the best tunes of all move to Carnegie Hall," dispensed 10 times in the 30 minutes of Information Please on NBC and 49 times in the 45 minutes of the Hit Parade on CBS—it refers to the program which will replace Information Please on February 12. Entitled "The All-time Hit Parade," it will have Mark Warnow's orchestra and singers, to come from Carnegie Hall, New York, as the studio.

Apparently Dan Golenpaul, owner of Information Please, didn't think so much of the idea for he sought a court restraining order to prevent further use in his program. Ever since, there has been quite a bit of behind-the-scenes ado, which included the filing of the court papers in the studio just before Information Please went on the air. Meanwhile, Golenpaul has a new sponsor, to begin February 15, which will move his program from Friday to Saturday nights on NBC.

Because of a special important announcement expected at 10 o'clock tonight, programs listed for that hour on the networks are to be realigned where necessary to make way for it.

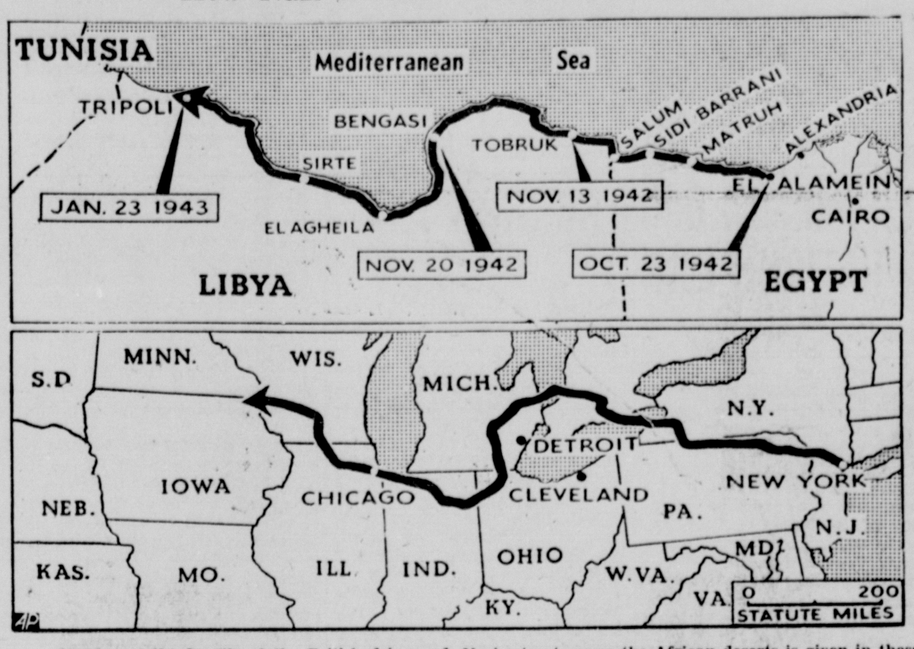
Nazi Tanks Captured In Russia

Captured Nazi tanks are banked solidly for a quarter of a mile somewhere in the Russian steppes southwest of Stalingrad. Moscow dispatches said this booty, and much more, fell into Soviet hands when the Reds hurled back a Nazi counter-attack recently. This picture was radioed from Moscow to London and thence to New York.

How Nazi Retreat Would Look In U.S.



An idea of the length of the British drive and Nazi retreat across the African deserts is given in these comparison maps showing the actual drive (top) and a theoretical operation across the United States (bottom). Since the launching of their offensive at El Alamein Oct. 23, 1942, the British chased the Axis troops approximately 1200 miles. The dates indicate when important points along the route were captured.

MINORITY ASKS REPEAL OF STATE PROPERTY LEVY

Harrisburg, Jan. 26 (AP)—The Pennsylvania General Assembly arranged a joint session today (12:15 p. m. EWT) to receive from Governor Martin personally his first legislative recommendations since his inauguration.

The new Chief Executive, fighting off a cold, said he would present 14 suggestions to the lawmakers dealing with his wartime program. Tax reduction recommendations, however, will await completion of his budget late in February.

While Martin completed his message, the Democratic minority started a drive in the House to write off an estimated $15,000,000 in 1942 taxes by proposing repeal of the four-mill state personal property levy.

Rep. Reuben E. Cohen of Philadelphia, offering a bill to carry out the plan in line with the party's campaign pledge to seek a $100,000,000 tax slash, said the measure would eliminate the calendar year 1943 from the personal property act "and automatically repeals 1942 taxes" due February 15.

Other Developments

The levy, first enacted in 1935, automatically expires May 31, and Governor Martin already has recommended against its continuance. Cohen estimates the tax will yield $31,000,000 for the current biennium although other sources fix receipts at about $20,000,000.

Sharing attention with the Democratic move were these other capitol developments:

1. A legislative investigating commission submitted six possible solutions to the mine cave-in problem, including creation of a mine control board for the anthracite industry, and asked for more time to study a plan of mine subsidence insurance that would require a state appropriation.

2. Senate Democrats continued refusal to permit confirmation of two cabinet appointees but insisted "we are not here to block any nomination."

3. The Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon league was urged by its superintendent, F. Scott McBride of Philadelphia, to support an eight-point program "to give better control and better enforcement" to the state's liquor laws.

Senator B. B. McGinnis of Allegheny, Democratic floor leader, announced after a party caucus last night that "we are not ready to act" on confirmation of Relief Secretary Samuel Y. Ramage III, Oil City, and Highways Secretary John Y. Shroyer, Shamokin.

Probing Qualifications

The Senator asserted "we're looking into their qualifications now," and disclosed the two would be invited to appear before the nominations committee today or tomorrow. He said Committee Chairman G. Harold Watkins (D.-Schuylkill) had consented to their appearance.

"We have not voted against these men," declared McGinnis. "All we ask is time to learn who these men are. They may be the best appointments the Governor has made but we on this side do not know it."

Republicans have a 32-18 majority in the Senate. Lacking a two-thirds vote necessary to confirm Gubernatorial appointees, they hold in committee names of those objected to by Democrats. Temporary heads have been named for departments involved.

Resumption of work by the legislators after a week-end recess brought another flood of bills, including proposals providing fines for thefts of food from Victory gardens and for wasting empty tin cans.

As an aftermath of the Boston Night Club fire, Rep. Herman J. Tahl (R.-Philadelphia) called for banning clubs built below ground level, forbid entertainment or assemblages unless the building is of fireproof construction and require one exit for every 50 seats.

Other measures proposed a straight $10 fee for all passenger automobile licenses and a reclassification of light pick-up trucks to reduce license fees from $26 to $16.50.

First Bills Near Passage

Senator Israel Stiefel (D.-Philadelphia) proposed a constitutional amendment to wipe out the Philadelphia county government and place control in the hands of city officials.

The Senate paved the way for final passage of its first bills this week by giving first reading to eight proposals reported out of committee. House committees meet today to consider similar action.

Democrats, meanwhile, introduced resolutions in both Houses setting March 1, as the deadline for submitting new bills. The party also set up a policy committee to map its legislative platform.

Floor Leader Cohen declared "purely partisan considerations" will doom many of the measures of the Democratic minority but "it will not diminish its efforts to hold the majority party to its promise to seek a government beneficial to all people of Pennsylvania."

I'm Reading Some Meters

Only ONCE in Every 3 Months

In order to conserve gasoline, tires and manpower, I am reading some electric meters only once in every three months now, instead of once a month. This applies particularly in rural territory and in communities not conveniently reached by existing methods of transportation. Bills for Electric Service are rendered monthly, but on the months in which the meter is not read, they are based on an estimate of previous use for a similar period.
